

The Funny Man

All those who think our jokes are poor,
Would straightway change their views,
Could they compare the ones we print,
With those that we refuse.

Red.—Why do you talk so much in your sleep,
Joe?

Joe.—It's the only chance I get.

George.—Joe called you a monkey, didn't he? I wouldn't stand for it.

Gavin.—What would you advise me to do?

George.—Make him prove it.

Professor in English.—What is the most sentimental line of poetry you have ever read?

Rupert.—O, Sleep, thou art a gentle thing.

Casey.—Is Dougan a good horse trainer?

Beagan.—Well, I should say he is, He'll take the slowest horse in the country and make him fast.

Casey.—Yes, to a post.

Kiggins.—I don't have to write any of the Latin exercises. I've got it all in my head.

McCabe.—So I heard. The professor told me you had the whole thing in a nut-shell.

Professor.—What are the five senses?

Twisty.—Nickels.

Mullally.—I hear that McMillan is about to enter politics. I wonder which house he'll sit in.

Fisher.—The Dominion House I guess.

Nelligan.—I trust I make myself plain.

Clara.—You don't have to. Nature attended to that for you.

Beagan.—I fell out of a window once and the sensation was terrible. During the fall, I really believe I thought of every mean act I had ever committed in my life.

Andy.—You must have fallen an awful distance.

M'Carville.—(at table) One swallow doesn't make a Summer.

Fay.—No, but bites the size you take would make one fall.

Finley.—When was the first bank founded?

Stephen.—Well, currency is first heard of in Noah's Ark.

Finley.—How do you explain that?

Stephen.—Well, the duck had a bill; the lamb, four quarters; the frog, a green back and the dog a scent.

Hughes.—You, Americans, have a peculiar fashion of dropping your "R's"

McGuill.—No, we haven't.

Hughes.—Well, then, pronounce "c-o-r-n-e-r-s."

McGuill.—Connors.

Alf.—What does H. C. L. mean, Frank?

Frank.—The High Cost of Louise, I guess.

Alphonse.—I have so many acquaintances in town that I cannot remember them all.

Kathleen.—I wish you would forget some more of them.
