

The Funny Man

Prof. in biology: "Give me an example of a warm blooded animal.

J. Ca...n: "Hot dog."

Dan: Why did our game with St. F.X. end in such a blaze of glory?

Joe: "I guess because Dynamite went off."

Polly: "I flunked in Latin this exam."

Art: "You say that you flunked, I don't understand it."

Polly: "Neither do I."

Old Man: "I think Spike would make a good wrestler.

Barney: "How's that?"

Old Man: "Because he is good in a clinch."

"I made a hit with her that time," said Ronnie as he boosted the Pigskin into the lap of the fair one on the grand-stand.

Prof. in Latin: Translate section 2 Norbert.

Pie: (in difficulties) Then Caesar, heavily armed, stood up on one hand and sat down on the other.

Frank D.: Oh! I had a delightful lunch this afternoon.

J. Far: Really—I, had one too.

F. D.: You were not in town to-day James?

J. G.: No, I took a roll in bed.

Conversation Overheard at a Dance

American girl: "You're from Canada, aren't you?",

Guillemette,: "Yes, how did you know?

Am. girl: "You dance as if you had always worn snowshoes.

Think twice before answering:

A monkey on top of a telephone pole. A man on the ground at the bottom. The man walks around the pole, and as he does so the monkey keeps turning around so he is always facing the man. Does the man walk around the monkey?

Prof: What is an isocoles triangle?

McD.: A four sided figure with all its sides right angles and all its angles triangles.

Dick: "Was Tingley a pitcher when he was young?"

Pop: "I am not aware that he was that kind of a vessel."

Dick: "At any rate, I've heard that he had close relations with the "Little Brown Jug."

One night late in October,
As the moon was on the wane,
Joseph crept from his chamber.
We know not what his aim.

Laval: "I love you hope of my life."

She: "I admire you, light of my days, light of my existence, light of—

Father: (from next room) Put out the lights and go to bed its midnight.

Joe: "I lost $150. last night.

Coady: "Really? were you robbed?

Joe: No, you see a fellow offered me $150. for a horse, but I didn't have one.

Amby: "I understand that Rubber John has won considerable fame as a short story writer.

Gus: Well at any rate he has an elastic imagination.

Mike: "Say Pat, what is that noise I hear in your room every night?

Pat: "Oh. That's just D's Singer. He has taken the contract of sewing on the football crests.

Can You Imagine

Simon doing the Charleston?

Mugsey: in a hurry?

Pie on a diet?

Gerard kicking a field goal?

Rubber John with an umbrella?

Sol ringing the smoker bell early?

We Wonder

Who is called Professor?

If Squeers Whipped his team into shape?

Where Bizz learned to play the Uke?

Who's Who

Pat, an old Man with a Funny Face, and a Wart on His Nose, sent his Fat Boy, Simon, a Simple fellow, to milk his White Cow Mugsey, in a Tub. But she kicked like a Mule, so Cyclops tied her to a Spike with a String and Wackey gave her a Plug of his Shoe: saying Sea-Cow. Just then Huck Finn's Widow came out and said, with a (Sigh): "You Clown! you are as rough as Squeers; why don't you Rub'er John?"

"By Cripes, I'll Gut the Bull headed old Moose" said Cornie, and he gave her a blow like Firpo, saying, "I'll Train'er."

"Great Scott'. what's to be done with that boy," said Messervey; "he is Pig headed and as stupid as a Goose." Just then the Red Collie Dog thought he Smelt a Skunk and away he went like a Streak with Bizz and the Tiny Little Pup Gyp, about as big as a Squirrel, after him, But it was only a Baboon Carrying a dead Drake.

All this time the maid Polly was baking Pumpkin Pie because they were expecting Fadder, the Bip, and Governor to Dyna while with them, while the Baby as Happy as a Hen on a Bundle of hay watched the Pussy, as stout as a Toad, Pop on a Mouse, like a ton of Brick. Dick the Scholar was reading Silas Marner. When he came to where Brom Bones and the Professor Ranna race, he heard a noise. He get up to shut the door and Lockit, but before he could say Jack Rabbit, Barney Google passed with an old Pole Horse Sparky as big as a Clyde, and with hind legs like a Grasshopper, giving the Captain a Speedy drive out to see the Doctor. Old Sol was sinking in the west when he got back, and Old Black Joe said he was Raven about the Ten Plagues and The Missing Link, like Iago until Midnight.
