ATHLETICS

A necessity, concomitant with the intellectual development of the student, is doubtless that of health, which in a manner permits him to retain his juvenescence and aids him to make the best use of his time.

St. Dunstan's, always solicitous about the possession of this source of happiness, has ever afforded to her students excellent facilities along lines of physical culture.

Although each season has its particular branch of athletics yet spring, more than any other season of the year, is always welcomed with great excitement and enthusiasm. It is in this season that baseball reigns supreme during recreation hours and the campus is the scene of many thrilling experiences.

Although the time for baseball has been short for this year and no opportunity, as yet, has been afforded us to try odds against any opposing team, baseball has, by no means, been allowed to become obsolete. The college campus has been the scene of some very fast practices in which the boys showed evidence of an intense interest to keep the standard of athletics still waving.

It is our sincere hope that our old time rivals will during this season bring baseball back to the standard it possessed in pre-war days, and that next year they will extend to us opportunities to perpetuate the baseball traditions of "Old St. Dunstan's."
