

Students Give Suggestions for Centennial Improvements at S. D. U. Prof. Shoot Down Myths

ARLENE BOYLAN

SDU should sponsor a program to revise some of its courses. Such new courses as anthropology and political science could be added to the curriculum. These additions could compliment many of the present courses offered at St. Dunstan's.

MARY DALTON

I suggest that SDU offer an oral French course for those wishing to become more proficient at speaking Canada's second official language. Such an addition to the French program would complement the present emphasis on grammar, and succeed in giving students a greater impetus to learn the language.

Secondly, a project to provide transportation to and from the campus for city students would provide a much appreciated and worthwhile service for many.

LEONARD PERRY

St. Dunstan, our patron saint, was born near Glastonbury, England. Glastonbury is noted for its Holy Thorn and the legend connected with it telling how this thorn grew from the staff of Joseph of Arimathea.

Since this university is named after St. Dunstan, then I think it would be most appropriate and commendable for the SDU Senior Class of '67 to get a graft from the Holy Thorn of Glastonbury and plant it in honor of the great saint after whom our university is named.

TORONTO (CUP) — A University of Toronto professor recently took a few well-aimed pot shots at an old sexual myth and the 'new morality'.

The myth that sex is play, an attitude of a society which does not know itself, Dr. F. Rubenstein told students at Hillel lecture.

"In the long run, sex is serious and not play," he said.

"Some relationships are productive of ideas, some are productive of money, but only one is productive of other human beings, and I can't believe anyone could not take this seriously."

The sex act returns to primacy of our origins and minds us of the short term life. For this reason love associated with death, Dr. Rubenstein said.

"Therefore sex is not but a very serious thing."

Dr. Rubenstein also spoke with a certain attitude of 'new morality' which says, 'I am a body. I am only a body and proud to be a body. Therefore in the sexual act I giving my total self.'

Sex is only meaningful when it is both psychologically and physically gratifying, he said.

STEVE CONNOLLY

A valuable centennial project for SDU would be the introduction of the opportunities offered by our university to P.E.I. high school graduates.

University representatives might be chosen from the Senior Class to visit Island schools informing prospective students of the numerous opportunities available to them. Such a program should further familiarize Freshmen to the benefits derived from the various faculties and the courses offered.

Given a summer to consider this information, the new university student could have an increased sense of direction and awareness of the future as he enters his Freshmen year.

DON PARKER

Centennial Year could be a landmark for this university with the construction of a Student's Union Building. Such a building could better co-ordinate student activities by providing the necessary social atmosphere and facilities for class meetings and gatherings.

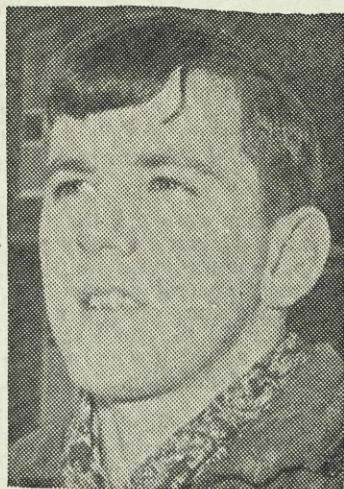

A union building would fuse the interests of campus and off-campus students by giving them a common base of operations and a more integrated schedule of events. City students might especially benefit from such facilities as lockers that the new building could provide.

ALAN MacKENZIE

I would strongly recommend the raising of Canada's new flag at the entrance of our campus.

Having graced the campus entrance by such an addition, the university might proceed to extend more frequent invitations to guest lecturers. These lecturers would put our new lecture theatre to its best advantage, and make a valuable contribution to the intellectual atmosphere at St. Dunstan's.

Second Century Week:

We've got a little deal for anyone with 15 friends

If you can get them all to go with you for Second Century Week celebrations, Air Canada will let you fly free. Isn't that great?

And the way we figure it, it shouldn't be too difficult getting them. After all, Second Century Week is the biggest project Canadian university students will have during Centennial Year.

Second Century Week will be held in Calgary and Edmonton from March 6-11. Which doesn't give you much time to start planning.

Even if you haven't got 15 friends, come in and see us anyway. Or go see your Travel Agent. You can still take advantage of our Fly Now-Pay Later Plan, Family Fare Discounts and all the other little things that make it so easy for you to come with us.
