

A TALE OF TWO-TIMING

Grandma comes from fair Peake's Station, down along the eastward way
And the girls at Peake's are waiting, hoping Grandma doesn't stray,
For he's working at Saint Dunstan's in a student's cap and gown,
But now and then on Thursdays sees the girls of Charlottetown.

His sweater it was red and white and his little shamrock green
When he came in Saint Patrick's day to see and to be seen.
And Grandma dated up a girl to go and see the play
And finish up at Milton's on the last Saint Patrick's day.

When the day was nearly over and the sun was sinking low
The train came in from Peake's, yes, and Grandma's cake was dough.
Two girls are not so many, but they surely make a throng
If they're both in town together and put Grandma's dating wrong.

But Talleyrand had nothing on this diplomat distressed
He and his loyal henchman meet the laden Peake's Express.
A skilful "double shuffle" makes the twisted date look right
And ends my song of Grandma—and last Saint Patrick's night.

—Crawley Moses.

$1.75

Here's the ideal College man's hat. It's smartly shaped, it's shown in greys, fawns and browns, just as modern in appearance as its more expensive cousins. And you can walk in from St. Dunstan's and back on a rainy day without hurting "NUFELT." It will not shrink, nor lose shape.
