

The Funny Man

Prof. of Book-keeping—Define a draft, its consequences and endorsement?

Turcotte—A draught is a cold thing you feel in the dormitory at night. Its consequences are that you are sick the next day, and its endorsement is three number 9's.

A. G.—I suppose you know it is now customary for a girl to take the name of a flower. I am taking the name of "Thistle."

Boisvert—Is it because you have such a sharp sense of humor?

A. G.—No, it is because I am loved by an ass.

Cyclops—Did Winnie make you feel at home?

McCarville—No, but she made me wish I was there.

Casey—What did Pat do when he was blamed for losing the sticks at Morell?

Gazoo—He raised Cain.

LaFontaie—What part of Physics are you studying now, Fred?

Kelly—Mechan(a)ism.

Prof. in Geometry—What name do we give to those geometrical figures shaped like an egg?

Saint-Clair—Egg-Circles.

Sinnott—What crazy fellows poets are! To-day we were reading a piece about an aching void. Now can you imagine such a thing as an aching void?

Katheleen—Did you never have a headache.

PROCEEDING CAUTIOUSLY

McGuill—Take the armchair, Hannah.

Hannah—No, you take it.

McGuill—Let us not fight about it Suppose we both take it.

Doctor—In your case, sir, I would advise you to walk a mile each morning on an empty stomach.

Tecumseh—Where could I get such a stomach sir.

Francis— (Coming back and finding Blacquiere shaving on the veranda)

Oh Andy ! You shaving outside.

Andy—What ! Did you think that I was fur-lined.

Prof. of English—Give the Present, Past, and Future of the verb “win.”

Bergeron—I Wynne, I had Wynne, and I shall have Wynne.

MacAuley—I wish I had money to travel ; I would not be here now.

Dell—Would'nt that be delightful.

Roach (to the old farmer assisting that actor to carry his portmanteau from Wiltshire to Kelley's Cross)—Out here, I presume, you take some long tramps over these hills.

Farmer (looking up)—Wall you're about the longest I've ever taken around.

Buff—There must be some mistake in the marking of my examination. I don't think I deserve an absolute zero.

Prof—Neither do I but it is the lowest mark I am allowed to give.

History Professor—Name the two most important things now existing which did not exist one hundred years ago ?

Duggan—Me and You.

Reckless—I love a girl who can stand a joke.

Mildred—If you propose you will surely be accepted.
