

WE DIDN'T SAY IT

Who said the Sophomores are a bunch of good-for-nothings? They got off to a grand start with the extremely democratic election of their class President, Gerry Fitz Gerald, who scored an overwhelming victory over all his opponents. The Sophomores first showed their prowess in the buzzer basketball league. Who could better dribble the ball down the court than Stonewall Howard? Oh yes, we're sorry about your injury, Gene. Meanwhile, the Sophs were busy breaking in their rookie prefect. He soon learned the ropes and stayed in his room when they were coming in late at night. Then came the football season and there was Jack Sullivan valiantly upholding their laurels. And poor Gene, we're sorry about your ailment. About this time our dear prefect learned a few rules. On well, I guess the missions needed the money. Then the 65er's began winning all the trophies. They proved to be the best bleeders, through which devious means, I don't know. Then the 102, what's his name? Oh yes, Burman, won the tennis tournament. However, exams were on the way so the boys settled down to study. It's okay to relax, Corcoran, but let's watch where we put our towels, eh. Well, they just about all made it back. S.D.U. Watton, unfortunately, was forced to return to Newfoundland. Then came the Winter Carnival. Remember the Railway Club! Gene's injury didn't stop him from taking part in that sport. Good to see your arm is in good shape, old chap. Speaking of the Carnival, Billy Barker has a few spare toques, if anyone's looking for one. Snoopy and Mary gave them a winning combination. By this time, their intra-mural hockey team was in operation. Hat-trick Hickey and Break-a-stick Hayden added color to the fighting Moosemen. Meanwhile, Slapshot Brophy added dynamite to that third line on the varsity hockey team. I wonder why Gene couldn't play hockey this year. Before dropping the hockey bit, let's recall Pisquid for a while. Pretty cold out there, wasn't it, Frank and Nora? Getting back to that darned prefect, if he checks once more, I'll $&?$. Wishy-washy Ross. Then came the Stanley Cup Playoffs. Don't cry, Terry, there's always next year. Curley, if you don't stop plunking that thing. That goes for you too, Bert. Election time rolled around, and Lester B. and McCaffery got to work. Mike Harris sure enjoys voting, doesn't he? Oh, oh! Joe Shorthill's coming, climb into your foxholes. Not you, Gene, you might hurt yourself. Sandy Cameron is looking for a pair of snowshoes. What about that clock on third floor? Or Mike Valiquette's police headquarters. It doesn't look like John Gillis will ever learn to play Nine's.

I guess they are a bunch of good-for-nothings, after all.

Freshmen take Intermural Finals

The Freshmen, backed by a rousing group of classmates, beat the Juniors in a final game after each team had won two games in a best of five series. The Freshmen, powered by Dave O'Brien and Gerry Smith on defence, showed their true spirit in this final game. The Juniors attacked the Freshmen goal in great bursts of play, but couldn't feed the puck past Freshman goalie Campbell. The Freshmen forwards garnered a total of seven goals in this game, to the Junior's three.

The series was very close all the way. Thanks must go to the referees, Mike O'Brien and Vince Mulligan, for the fine job they did in keeping the games under control.

The intermural play-offs began with the Sophomores meeting the Juniors, and the Seniors against the Freshmen in a three game semi-final series. The Juniors won their bout in two straight games, while the Seniors put up a fine battle against the young Freshmen. The latter won the first game 3-2, but the Seniors came back to take the second game. The final outcome of this tussle was the Freshmen playing the Juniors for the intramural championship.

A WORD FROM THE EDITOR OF MNEMOSYNE

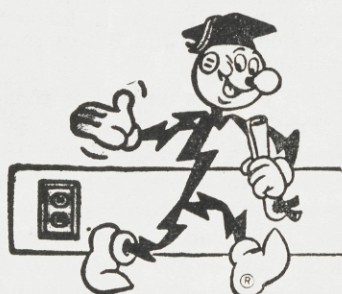

"Mnemosyne???", it's our Yearbook. Actually, this year's edition—now nearing completion—is St. Dunstan's second successful attempt at producing a Yearbook.

I've started off this effort in the above manner for the benefit of some Freshmen and any others who may not happen to know of the Yearbook's existence. There are a few in this latter category, for we haven't received payment ($4.00) from a number of these individuals.

Some argue that they don't have to buy four volumes of the Yearbook; this has been explained previously: A reduction of half the number of books we order from our publishers would result in a substantial increase of price per unit. So, for the Common Good it was unanimously decided at a General Student Body Meeting two years ago, that everyone be assessed a fee for the Yearbook. This is the situation at other universities where the fee is collected with the Student Union Fee; this arrangement has worked out satisfactorily. Unfortunately the cost of the Yearbook has not been incorporated into the fees of St. Dunstan's; we are hoping to have it done this year. However, until the method of collection is remedied, we still have to pay our publisher. We ask those who have not paid for their copy to do so as soon as possible.

Several years from now, your Yearbook will revive for you many of the pleasant memories (all right, possibly some of the not-so-pleasant ones too! of your years at St. Dunstan's: Son of a gun, I used to take her out. We did a good job on that sculpture (senior?) That's the night the candid camera caught me coming out of the shower, etc., etc.

You can have your life at St. Dunstan's beautifully bound in four volumes; for a reasonable price you can't afford to miss it.

Something To Consider

CONVICTION

Is a sign of confidence which stems from faith and knowledge.

FIGHT

Is a sign of conflict which stems from ambition, a desire for action and a struggle for justice.

VOTING

Is a sign of democracy which stems from a desire for liberty. God help the person who fails to vote and support his own convictions! God help the person who is too busy to vote and fight for the better man!

THAT which a man does is that which counts!

THAT which is a man "is" is anyone's opinion.

The book will be out in Sept- it sent to them; others may pick ember. The Seniors and those who up their copy when they return don't return in the fall will have to S.D.U.
