

THE WIDOW AND THE TEN PLAGUES

A PARABLE

A gallant of old RED AND WHITE
On a mission of love, came to town
With his chum, a lad wily and bright,
He couldn't face courting alone.

The pair interviewed the fair lady,
Delightful, the visit they had
But the friend, with principles shady
Undermined my hero—poor lad!

Next Thursday alone came the gallant,
His courage was higher this time,
But the false friend came early, base callant,
And WIDOWED the sheik of my rhyme.

Disconsolate, back to the College
He retreated, forsaken, betrayed,
The TEN PLAGUES had given him knowledge,
O! trust not your friends with a maid!

Did he yield then, in weakness to sorrow?
Nay, he won her back and she's proud,
She'll be out with him, likely, to-morrow,
Both dolled up by MOORE & McLEOD.

—Crawley Moses.

In this final number of RED AND WHITE may we wish to the Students and Professors of S. D. U. a very pleasant vacation; to the Graduating Class every success, and to Mr. Crawley Moses a period of rest.
