

The Funny Man

Three is a magic number;
This I maintain with vim,
For now we have in proof of the fact,
Helen, Kitty, and Jim.

Young Lady: "Will you give ten cents to help the Old Ladies' Home?"

Lumber Joe: "What? Are they out again?"

History Prof.: "Who are the Stuarts?"

Goldie (automatically): "Oh, a family in Kensington."

Prof. in English: "Explain abstract and concrete."

Trainor: "Abstract is what Blanche puts in a cake to flavor it, and concrete is what the cake is when it is made."

Sock.: "What's that on your lip?"

MacAulay: "Don't knock a moustache when it's down."

The Tale of a Rabbit

I have a motor car, said she,
This girl who loved to talk;
And led him home two miles or more,
She sure took Bunny for a walk.

Sockfoot: "Say, Murphy, you're the most two-faced man in this college."

Ed. Murphy: "Well, I'm sure, if I had another face
I wouldn't wear this one."

Prefect of Discipline: "You shouldn't have let Baldwin and Hughes play football."

Coach: "Why? They heel all right."

Prefect: "Ah! but they are co-eds, and do a lot of talking."

Sap: "I want to go to see Florence."

Prefect: "That's a long journey."

Sap: "Oh no, only about two miles."

Prof. in Philosophy: "Quid sit perfectio ?"

Domine Maggie: "Oh, Professor, I don't like to talk about myself."

Shea: "I hear the old man is going on a long voyage."

Minnie: "Why ?"

Shea: "Because he just got a camel (Campbell)."

Ode to the Vulture

I'm just a jolly old Vulture,

I eat all that comes my way.

I sleep on my bed in the night time,

And repose there most of the day.

Jed: "Is Jules getting anything on the radio ?"

Joe: "Yeah, he gets long distance now."

Jed: "When did he get it ?"

Joe: "He stayed up late last night and he thought he had 'Virginia'."

Prof.: "What is gender, Mr. Goodman ?"

Bull Dog: "It is something which tells whether a man is masculine or feminine."

Bowser: "Is Marion very clever, Pius ?"

Sissy: "Well, I'll say so. She has enough brains for two."

Bowser: "Well, marry her right away."

Mush Mouth (opening window): "Do you mind if I let out some hot air ?"

Porky: "Not a bit, keep on talking."

Sap: "Perhaps the end of the world might be next week."

Doug: "Hurrah ! No exams."

Raisin: "Doctor, I have one foot in the grave."

Doc. Delaney: "Don't worry, you'll never get the other one in."

Bob: "Does Doc. borrow much from you ? "

Peg: "Borrow ! Why I feel more at home in his room than in my own."

Prof. of History: "Sir, I believe somebody is telling you the answer."

Ram.: "Oh, no, that's history repeating itself."

Sally: "Do you play football ? "

Alex.: "Yes."

Sally: "Gosh, I thought it was a man's game."

Dunn: "Who made the longest run at Wolfville for the Saints ? "

Maggie: "Minnie ran two miles for gas."

Prefect of Discipline (speaking on an authority):
When I go down the corridor to stop a noise, what do I represent ? "

Annie: "A plant."

Prefect: "Why a plant ? "

Annie: "Because you're a creeper."

Ram: "I hear you got only 95% in Greek."

Willie D.: "Yes, I'll have to start studying now."

College Football

The college football coach took one of his best forwards aside on a fine fall day and said:

"Dick, you are going to pieces. You're pale and thin and flabby. What's happened to you ? Are you studying ? "

"Studying ? Me ? " said Dick, "I should say not ! "

"You must be smoking, then."

"I never touch a smoke."

The coach looked at him hard.

"Dick," he said, "it can't be that you're getting up at six o'clock ? "

"Well, you see,"—Dick turned very red—"well, yes, I do get up now and then, you see—"

But the coach cut him short. "Any more of that, Dick," he said, "and you're off the team."

Prof. in Physics: "What kind of heating system is in your room?"

Maggie: "Hot air."
