

The Funny Man

Auburn—"After that game with Prince of Wales my legs were covered with cleat prints."

Pie—"That's nothing. I was covered from head to foot with prints of Whales."

Ches.: "That chap entertains quite an opinion of himself, doesn't he?"

Thunder: "Well, it's reciprocal. The good opinion entertains him."

Hatty: "I think I'll get into a fight with the janitor."

Keefe: "What's the big idea?"

Hatty: "Then he'll make it hot for me all winter."

Chaff: "They are putting up a new statue of George Washington in Boston. It's a wonderful piece of work."

Cicero: "Is it an equestrian statue?"

Chaff: "Well, it is a little that way—yes."

Boo: "Aw, don't ask so many questions. Don't you know that curiosity killed a cat?"

Hazelton: "Zat so? What did the cat want to know?"

Thunder: "I hate food."

Griff: "How's that?"

Thunder: "Spoils my appetite."

Aged lady: "Little boy, it makes me sick at heart to see you smoke."

Wilf. Callaghan: "Is that the way it affects you, ma'am? It seems to catch me more in the stomach."

Prof.: "Will you tell me, please, what the term necrology means?"

Hammill: "A study of death sir."

A HISTORICAL PARALLEL

Louis XIV: "I am the state."

Swivel: "Cut that arguin'. I'm the empire."

Zip: "There is a town in Massachusettes named after you."

Dave: "What's its name?"

Zip: "Marblehead."

Prof.: "Give for one year, the number of tons of coal shipped out of Canada."

Bubbles: "1492, none."

McKendrick: "Say, what did you mean by telling Marjorie I was a fool."

Archie: "Heavens! Pardon me, I didn't know it was a secret."

Sparky: "I want to see some mirrors, please."

Salesman: "Hand mirrows, sir?"

Sparky: "No, I want one that I can see my face in."

Prof.: "Will you please decline the verb amo?"

Jiggs: "I'm afraid I'll have to."

The Judge may be a good mathematician but it takes a snake to be an adder.
