NAPOLEON BEAUDET

Born in P. Q. 1915, Nap. came to Saint Dunstan's in 1933, having his B.L. from Laval. Here, he proved himself a good student, an unassuming and likeable fellow, and an excellent athlete. Adept in any sport, he excelled in hockey and ping-pong.

A fine violinist, he is a lover of music. His hero is Mussolini whom, we think, he may rival in oratory. While admiring anything romantic, to the ladies (for the present) he says with his hero: "Bimba, non mi guardare."

Napoleon's chosen profession is Law. We wish you every success, Nap, and say not "adieu" but "au revoir."

—T. P. B., '36.

JEAN-MARIE DIONNE

Since we have had the pleasure of receiving Jean-Marie into our company we cannot have avoided noticing and enjoying his pleasant disposition. Although a native of Matane, he studied at Rimouski, P. Q., where he obtained his B.L.

Since coming here Jean-Marie has taken his place in all college activities. We are told that this virile young man is also popular on Monday nights. He is an athlete of no ordinary ability, for besides starring with the last two intramural hockey champions, he plays handball, softball, baseball and tennis.

We do not know what work our friend will take up but we feel that he will be successful.—J. A. M., '37.

JOHN HORACE DOYLE

Jack, President of his class, hails from Frampton, Quebec. He has visited all the provinces yet he chose the "Garden Province" as his second home and he is loath to leave it. At St. Dunstan's he studied conscientiously seven years and has succeeded. He possesses a Commercial Diploma, a B.L., and a B.A. "in potentia."

Jack is a good athlete being a member of our senior hockey, baseball and football teams. He captained the latter team during the past season. In short Jack exemplifies "a sound mind in a sound body." Therefore we know he will succeed, so good-bye Jack and the best of luck.—J. L. McD., '36.

STEPHEN DORSEY GILLIS

What ho ! Who is this dashing buccaneer who thinks work a pastime, care a myth, and leisure non-existent ? He, my friends, is our famous Steve Gillis.

A great student, a brilliant athlete, his exploits have merited for him the presidency of the Athletic Association, the presidency of the Senior Debating Society, and the editorship of Red and White.

For four seasons he has been a member of the Varsity football team, of the baseball nine, and a great softball player.

If his record of achievements at college foretells his success in life, St. Dunstan's will indeed take pride in being called his Alma Mater.

Adios, Steve, and happy landings !—J. O'H., '36.

AUBREY IGNATIUS HUGHES

Advisor to new students, friend to older ones, generous to those in need, helpful to those in trouble; this sums up Aubrey's character. He showed his endurance on the football field every fall and was rewarded by making first team. While not a great athlete, he has always taken keen interest in college games. His popularity has been manifested by his election to presidency of the C. S. M. C., a position which he capably filled. Perhaps he is not a genius but he is an indefatigable worker. He leaves us, a friend to everyone. We shall miss him. Good-bye Aubrey, and good luck.—J. McC., '36.

LOUIS FRANCIS MONAGHAN

One of the most clever members of this year's class, Lou was born in Charlottetown, and in Queen Square School imbibed the fundamentals of education. He then spent two years in Prince of Wales College and in 1932 entered St. Dunstan's. This year he departs from her portals—one of her most brilliant sons, his record as debater and all-round student being equalled by few. His value as a literary critic was demonstrated while exchange editor on the Red and White, and his popularity among his class-mates is attested to by his being elected valedictorian. Regretfully we say: "Farewell, Lou, may success always attend you."—J. D. R., '35.

JOSEPH ALBAN MACDONALD

This graduate entered St. Dunstan's in '32 after having spent two years at Prince of Wales College. His assiduous pursuit of knowledge begun in Bedeque was continued here where he drank more deeply of the cup of learning. He now leaves us seeking new conquests.

Gifted with athletic ability Alban participated in Intra-mural sports and played good Senior football.

The presidency of the Dramatic Club and a contributing editorship to the Red and White were positions well filled by our friend.

His character and talents make for a happy cruise on the sea of life. Alban, we wish you "bon voyage."

—J.N.K., '36.

WILLIAM DAMIEN MCDONALD

"Willie D's" five years here have shown us his many good qualities, both as a gentleman and a sportsman. His chief recreation is skating, although he played hockey, softball, and football. In debate he showed a biting sarcasm, a ready wit. A great patriot, none can belittle the Scotch race in his presence and escape unscathed. He has devoted many hours to his favourite pastime, reading. We do not know what profession Willie intends to follow, but we do know that the industry he has shown while here will bring amazing results in his chosen occupation. From our heats we wish him the best of luck—J. McC., '36.

JOSEPH HERBERT MCKENNA

Herb was born at Emerald, P. E. I., sometime in the "teens" of the twentieth century. He took up his abode at St. Dunstan's in 1930 hoping to finish his training with a University education. Five happy, work-filled years passed—Now he is about to graduate leaving behind a host of friends and an enviable record.

In sports he proved an excellent teammate or a worthy opponent. His fine scholastic record speaks for itself.

Herb, we shall not soon forget your friendship. We expect great things of you. May God see fit to crown your endeavours with generous reward.—J.N.K., '36.

FRANCIS JAMES MCNEILL

Here we have our class Secretary and Business Manager of the Red and White, "Peg" to you—; a brilliant student, a compelling speaker, a worthy athlete, a clear-thinking business man, a mind full of wholesome humor, and an ardent admirer of Huey Long—that is "Peg."

He is a son of Summerside; a graduate of Summerside High School. He has a praiseworthy two-year record at Prince of Wales College, and the three years he has been with us, have demonstrated his great worth.

To a friend of all—good-bye! May every opportunity be yours!—J.H.M., '35.

LESTER PATRICK O'DONNELL

A bit of blarney, a bit of the devil, a great deal of humor—Result: a true descendent of the "auld sod."

This lad hails from that fair 'metropolis' of the East, Souris. His happy, care-free disposition has been derived from daily contemplation of its sunny fields, shining waters, and beautiful vistas.

Debate and argument are Lester's forte. Pranks and antics are his delight. Diligent study is his joy. No sport or activity but demands his support.

There he is, friends, a real gentleman that deserves your admiration.

He's off! Good-bye, Lester, and may the success you merit be yours forever.—J. O'H., '36.

CLARENCE THEODORE PINEAU

Meet the class pianist and a future Paul Whiteman in the making. "Maestro" has many a time enlivened us with his classical as well as his popular pieces.

He was born in Rustico shortly after the advent of the century. There he learned his ABC's and later entered Prince of Wales departing with his license. He then decided to teach, later to work, and finally to enter St. Dunstan's as a student professor.

Despite his short stay, he has been actively engaged in Dramatic and Choir work, being the efficient organizer of the latter.

Au revoir, Clarence. We'll miss you!—S.D.G., '35.

JOSEPH DOUGALD READY

This witty and care-free youth is another contribution of Kensington High School to our Alumni. During the years he has attended St. Dunstan's, Joe has passed his grades successfully and obtained his B.L.

But studies have not commanded all of our subject's time. Hockey is of particular interest to him, and this year besides being hockey representative in the S. D. U. A.A.A., he was captain and center of the first team. He was also an effective member of the baseball and football squads and of the champion tennis doubles team last fall.

This genial little man has a way of getting along which we expect will help him attain a prosperous position in life.—J.A.M., '37.

WILBERT ANGUS SHEA

Possessed of a strong character, faithful and honest in every way, a man and a gentleman—reader, meet Wilbert Shea. In everything he plays the man's part, whether it be in studies or in college activities.

Sartorial perfection, super-human football, assiduous study—these are but a few of his perfections. He is what every graduate wishes to be; a man in whom morality may be found combined with gentility.

But alas! Our model is soon to leave us. Yet we feel assured that his departure is not the end but the beginning of his success. Fervently we say, "Vaya con Dios."—L.J.A., '36.

NEIL EDWARD TRITES

St. Dunstan's has seen many men leaving her portals, some with her benediction; others less fortunate, without it. Neil is among the deserving ones. Five years ago he came here from Moncton, a stranger; now he departs, taking with him the friendship of all, student and professor alike.

In class and as "Athletic Editor of Red and White" his abilities were pronounced. A fine athlete, he played for three years, Senior football, hockey and basketball equally well.

Eddie old friend, we are going to miss you, but our loss is another's gain. May life hold for you happiness and prosperity.—J.N.K., '36.
